This is a 5 mile circular walk from the Dabbling Duck cafe in Shere, Surrey. The walk explores large sections of the adjacent Albury Estate taking in pastures, woodland, Albury village and heathland, with chance to enjoy great views across the rolling hills. The route includes several gentle climbs and descents throughout and some sections can get quite muddy after periods of rain. There are toilets at Shere but none en route, except for the one at the pub, hence this is a good lunch stop. Approximate walking time will be 2 – 2 ½ hours. For further information about the walk visit the website below. <http://www.footpath.com/display-footpath-walk?walkID=2649>. Travel directions are copied here.

Shere is located between Guildford and Dorking, just south of the A25. It is easiest to park in the free village car park. Turn off the A25 into Upper Street and follow this as it swings left – look out on the left for the small blue 'P' sign which leads you into the village car park. From the car park, you need to make your way to the Dabbling Duck cafe to begin your walk. Exit the car park back to the junction with Upper Street. Turn left along the pavement for just a few paces and then cross over with care to turn right into Middle Street. You'll find the Dabbling Duck just a little way along on the right. Approximate post code GU5 9HF.
